Mileage

Mileage should be submitted daily whenever possible. Mileage may be submitted covering longer intervals but may never span multiple months. At a minimum, you must submit your mileage for a given month at the end of that month. Methods for reporting include:

- REPORTING MILEAGE DAILY (Preferred)
- REPORTING MULTIPLE TRIPS TO THE SAME LOCATION
- REPORTING MULTIPLE TRIPS TO DIFFERENT LOCATIONS USING A JOURNAL

Reporting Mileage Daily

- Create a new expense item by selecting +NEW EXPENSE.
- Select or create the appropriate BUSINESS PURPOSE.
- Enter the Expense Date. The Expense Date is the date of travel.
- Select the Category as Mileage.
- Leave the Expense has been Advanced off.
- Enter the Mileage driven.
- The Mileage is populated with the current reimbursement rate permitted by the IRS.
- The Amount is calculated based on the mileage driven and the reimbursement rate.
- The Description must include the starting point and destination(s) included in the mileage.

Example

On March 21, 2019, you drive from the office in Holly Springs to Oxford, NC for a project update meeting at ABC. The trip is 57 miles each way.

- The Business Purpose is "Project Meeting".
- The job number ABC19A should appear below the Business Purpose line. The Expense Date is March 21, 2019.
- The Category is Mileage.
- You did not use the company credit card for this purchase so leave the Expense has been Advanced off.
- The Mileage is 114 for the roundtrip that day.
- The amount is automatically calculated based on the mileage and reimbursement rate.
- The Description is Roundtrip Holly Springs office to Oxford, NC – 21MAR19.

Reporting Multiple Trips to the Same Location

- Create a new expense item by selecting +NEW EXPENSE.
- Select or create the appropriate BUSINESS PURPOSE.
- Enter the Expense Date. The Expense Date is the last date of travel for the week.
- Select the Category as Mileage.
- Leave the Expense has been Advanced off.
- Enter the Mileage driven for the week.
- The Mileage is populated with the current reimbursement rate permitted by the IRS.
- The Amount is calculated based on the mileage driven and the reimbursement rate.

- The Description must include the starting point and destination as well as the number of trips taken during the week.

Example

You travel back and forth Monday through Friday the entire month of April, 2019 from your house in Streetsboro, OH to a job site, ABC, in Cleveland, OH for commissioning. Mileage from your house to ABC is 30 miles each way.

- The Business Purpose is "Commissioning".
- The job number ABC19A should appear below the Business Purpose line.
- The Expense Date is April 30, 2019.
- The Category is Mileage.
- You did not use the company credit card for this purchase so leave the Expense has been Advanced off.
- The Mileage is 1,320 for the month. (60 miles roundtrip for 22 trips)
- The amount is automatically calculated based on the mileage and reimbursement rate.
- The Description is "Roundtrip Streetsboro to Cleveland Mon-Fri, 01APR19 – 30APR19, (22) trips".

Reporting Multiple Trips to Different Locations using a Journal

- You may use this option if you keep a travel Journal and the Business Purpose for the week is the same.
- Create a new expense item by selecting +NEW EXPENSE.
- Use ATTACH RECEIPT to attach a picture of your Journal showing details for the week. Each trip must be documented with date of travel, beginning point, ending point, miles driven and reason for travel.
- Select or create the appropriate BUSINESS PURPOSE.
- Enter the Expense Date. The Expense Date is the last date of travel for the week.
- Select the Category as Mileage.
- Leave the Expense has been Advanced off.
- Enter the Mileage driven for the week.
- The Mileage is populated with the current reimbursement rate permitted by the IRS.
- The Amount is calculated based on the mileage driven and the reimbursement rate.
- The Description must state "See Journal".

Example

You travel several days to a variety of locations during the week of April 28, 2019. You keep a detailed Journal showing date, starting point, ending point, miles driven and reason for travel. Your Journal shows:
