Summary

This document outlines travel, and associated expenses, related to RoviSys employees traveling to RoviSys offices.

Travel Approval Requirements

In all cases, inter-office travel must be approved prior to booking or engaging in any travel or expenses. Travel associated with project activities should be approved by the RoviSys assigned PM or RM; whereas travel not associated with project activities should be approved by the Employee's GM or Director.

The travel approver shall work with the employee to designate/approve all Lodging, Meals, Rental Car or Personal Vehicle Mileage, and Airline options used during Inter-Office travel.

Travel durations of more than 5 days, or 10+ days in a 30-day period, requires preemptive approval by both a RM or GM and a Director. Travel that extends beyond 30 days should align with the policies outlined in the Extended Inter Office Travel section of this document.

Exceptions to stated policies require review and approval by the project RM, the employee's GM, or the employee's Director.

Inter-Office Travel

All employees have a designated "Office Location" in UKG which defines the RoviSys office which the employee reports to. For designated "Remote Employees", this "Office Location" is assigned as "Remote" in UKG.

Travel to/from your RoviSys designated "Office Location" is generally not eligible for reimbursement.

Travel and expenses to a RoviSys office, which is not designated as your "Office Location" (this also includes employees with a "Remote" designation traveling to any RoviSys office) shall be handled as defined in this sub-RAP 306.08, RAP 306, and any other applicable sub-RAPs to RAP 306.

Expenses Policy

All expenses associated with inter-office travel should be submitted using the RoviSys Expenses Application.

Expenses for inter-office travel associated with customer project work should be expensed to the appropriate customer project(s); the PM/RM will determine if the expenses are able to be invoiced to the customer or not.

Expenses unrelated to project work (e.g., travelling to a RoviSys office for a company event such as RAC or non-project related training) are to be expensed to one (or more) divisional Admin project(s).

Airline Travel, Rental Cars, Mileage (Personal Auto), and Meal & Incidental Expenses will all be regulated by the standard policy defined in RAP 306. Employees requiring lodging must book at an approved option as outlined in Approved Lodging - Rovipedia

Extended Inter-Office Travel

Extended Inter-Office travel applies to inter-office travel that extends beyond 30 days.

Lodging – For long term inter-office travel, RoviSys PM/RM/GM should look to secure temporary housing for the project team in the form of condos, apartments, or equivalent. Each employee will have his/her own room; however, where appropriate, 2 employees may be asked to reside in the same apartment. Leases will be written using a RoviSys account with rent being billed directly to the company. Employees have no expense obligation for apartment rent. If hotels are required during any portion of the project, then the current expense procedures for hotel stays shall apply.

Airline Travel – Routine travel for long-term projects should be booked 2 weeks in advance to secure reasonably priced tickets. All airline travel will be expensed by each employee according to current procedures (See RAP 306).

Rental Cars – RoviSys employees working at RoviSys office for 30+ days are asked to provide personal transportation at the destination office, as applicable and available. Mileage will be paid according to current policy for transporting the vehicle between the RoviSys offices. Once the employee's vehicle arrives at the non-local office, the standard mileage policy will apply. Rental cars will be expensed and reimbursed at cost if needed during trips home.

For example: Joe Smith lives in Aurora, OH and must travel to Holly Springs, NC for a 5-month project. Joe will be reimbursed mileage to drive his vehicle from Aurora to Holly Springs. Once in NC, Joe will only be reimbursed for mileage between the Holly Springs office and the customer site. Travel from Joe's temporary housing to the Holly Springs office is considered a local resident commute. Every other Friday, Joe flies home to Cleveland and uses a rental car for the weekend. The rental car can be expensed at cost per the current RAP.

Meal & Incidental Expense – Each employee will receive a daily per diem set according to the US General Services Administration's Domestic Per Diem rates. The per diem is to cover all meal expenses associated with the travel. Each employee will submit a monthly expense report for the number of days at the non-home office. Per Diem will be paid for all days (including weekends) that the employee is traveling. Per Diem rates are defined by the US government: <https://www.gsa.gov/travel/plan-book/per-diem-rates>
